FOREWORD

During its first year The Patriot concentrated on the transfer into a new school with students and teachers considered actors on a new and glamorous stage. In 1963 the yearbook evaluated Patrick Henry's expanding curriculum. Now the focus is on the individual and his school life—a combination of much work and a little play.

As departments have grown this year, they have offered each pupil new opportunities in learning and understanding. He is called on for increased participation in class and large group discussions, assemblies and extra-curricular school activities. All these facets of Patrick Henry life make it a school with 1265 lead roles in every action.

To you—Miss Frances Jones Cooper—in recognition of all that you have done to make us better students, we dedicate the 1964 Patriot.

The Patriot Honors Miss Frances J. Cooper

- For your patience and kind understanding;
- For the desire that you have instilled in us to seek higher education;
- For the excellent preparation that you have given us for college;
- For your assistance when things did not work out as they should have;
- For the extras that you included in class lectures;
- For these and for all of your many other gestures.

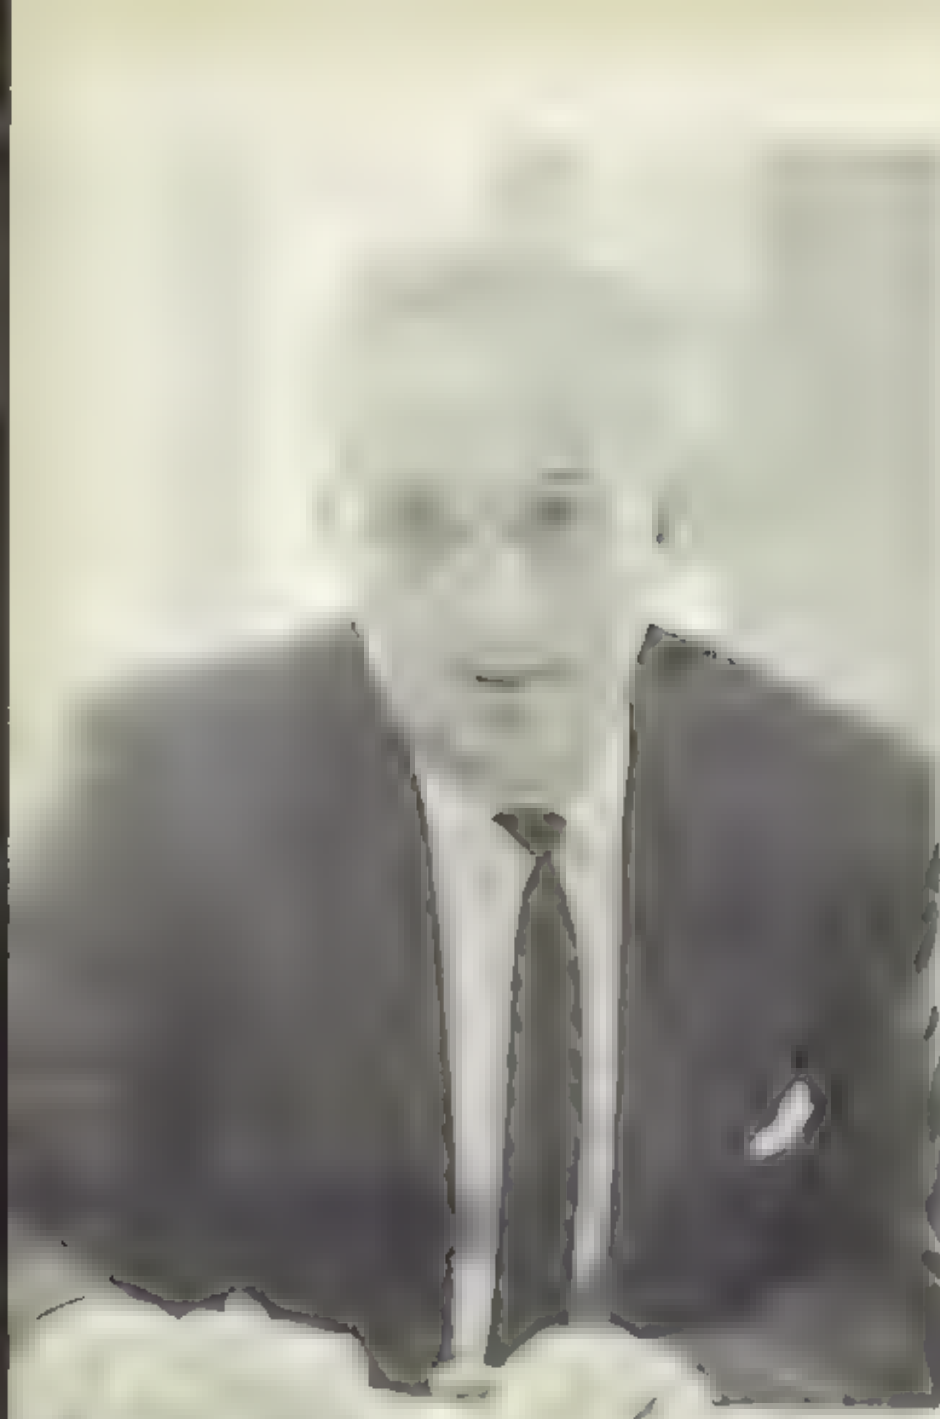

"Mr. Chem" looks on approvingly, during discussion of oxygen, as Miss Cooper explains decomposition of potassium chlorate.

24-Hour Schedule Busies Mr. Secord

Mr. Harold L. Secord, an experienced high school principal has to cope with almost everything! Aside from his routine chores, Mr. Secord is busy visiting classes, continually evaluating and extending the school's curriculum, entertaining all school guests, shouldering the responsibility of all of Patrick Henry's activities, and coordinating the work of the three halls

For a year with the intercom at Patrick Henry has excited both students and teachers. Mr. Secord enjoys the few moments when he reads off announcements into this fascinating machine.

Halls Function Via Deans

Each of the three deans, Mr. Lewis Pitzer, McQuilkin Hall, Mr. Donald Bartol, Parsons Hall, and Mr. Benjamin Taylor, Persinger Hall, under the supervision of the principal, Mr. Harold Secord, is in complete charge of the students in his respective building. They help maintain the close student-teacher relationship found at Patrick Henry. From holding conferences with parents to discuss students' progress or lack of progress, to teaching two classes daily, to administering any necessary discipline needed in his hall, to arranging students' class schedules, a dean's job is never done.

Bookkeeping heads Mrs. Grant's list of duties

Keeping all school records and carrying out Mr. Secord's directives are the main duties of the clerical workers, Mrs. Una White, Mrs. Cornelia Grant, and Miss Carol Cundiff

Diligent worker behind all school projects is Mr. George Graybill, Director of Student Activities

The tedious task of adding credits to students' accumulative files fills up many Spring days for Miss Cundiff

Mr. Secord's official secretary, Mrs. White records and files transcripts

Records Backbone School

Mr. Nave finishes a phone call as a student waits for a conference

With emphasis more than ever being placed on grades, students need experienced guidance. Deciding on what courses to take now, what college to attend and what profession to enter are some of the most troublesome problems that face space-age students. The advice given them by their guidance counselor helps in planning a future a little more fool-proof

Mr. Carl Nave advises students in McQuilkin Hall; Mrs. Elizabeth Ward those in Parsons Hall; Miss Margaret Martin those in Persinger Hall. The work of all is coordinated by Mr. James Bishop. These guidance counselors are experienced in the field of education not only as advisors but also as classroom teachers giving them a more expanded outlook on students' problems

Advisors Guide Student-Success Program

Upon entering Patrick Henry each student is assigned one advisor. As the student goes through high school the guidance counselor is able to direct him to his best advantage. This promotes a close student-success program. Offered a wide range of courses, students are able to prepare for terminal education or further training beyond graduation

ACADEMIC LIFE

Interest grew this year as each student felt his important place in the school. New challenges were offered to everyone in English, math, modern languages, science, history, fine arts, business and physical education. To draw talented individuals of all departments together, the Fine Arts presented Handel's Messiah in December and A Midsummer Night's Dream as the Spring Serata in May.

English Students Study From John Lyly To Harper Lee

Highlighting the English program this year was team teaching between the English and history departments. Two eleventh grade English classes and two history classes combined their study of American literature and history.

Through this co-operative venture of four teachers, the students had the same material presented from two viewpoints—the literary and historical.

Each student prepared the same reports for his English and history teachers. The English teacher graded for mechanics and literary value; the history teacher, for content and historical aspect.

These four experimental classes met for two consecutive periods and worked as large groups for lectures or films and as small ones when the need arose to concentrate on grammar.

All English groups were able to employ films on the humanities for augmenting class comprehension. For example, Freshmen saw analytical films on Great Expectations while reading this novel. Among their other studies were Ivanhoe and grammar.

Sophomores surveyed the literature of all countries and compared Silas Marner and To Kill a Mockingbird. In their course, also, were grammar, spelling and writing.

Seniors forgot about grammar drills except when weaknesses became evident through compositions. The majority of their time was spent on English literature.

Included in the English department were other courses. In Creative Writing students learned excellent writing techniques, and composed many of the Quill articles.

In Reading class pupils improved their reading speed and comprehension. Speech offered techniques for effective communication through panel discussions, speeches and assemblies. Also, available was a course in play production.

World Literature gave pupils the chance to read and understand masterpieces of the world. A new course presented, through discussion, the many writings of Shakespeare. Another new course, English Grammar, covered completely the needs of students for thorough understanding of grammar principles.

Through this ever expanding English program, students at Patrick Henry are continually being well-prepared for their future needs in the world of English.

English honors have ranged from recognitions in poetry to forensics. In September Sue Spriggle received a first place award in the Virginia High School League Poetry Contest for her poem, "Skier." Poems of six students—Sue Hawkins, Sue Spriggle, Raymond Karnes, Pat Rea, Mark Johnston, and Glee Colbert were published in the National High School Poetry Anthology.

Nominated for the award by the National Council of Teachers of English for outstanding eleventh grade English pupils were Jane Martin, David Robertson, and Laurel Stoller. Rawley Turner was selected by the English teachers as the outstanding English student at Patrick Henry. From the newspaper staff Laurelee Grimm was chosen as the most valuable staff member.

In forensics competition Cathy Crockett won second place in the district spelling meet and Cindy Leeds won third place in the poetry reading contest. Jo Sydenstricker won first place in both the district and state competition for girls' prose reading.

Most outstanding English Student: Rawley Turner, presented a book of poems to the Home Society assembly for the induction of new members.

Patrick Henry boasts three forensic winners this year. Cindy Leeds, third place district. Jo Sydenstricker, first place district and state, Kathy Crockett, second place district.

Students Explore New Realms Of Math

Patrick Henry's Mathematics Department has been recognized as modern and diversified. In the past three years the department has attempted to combine old proven methods with new ideas. Two aspects of this theory have been employed this year. Plane and Solid geometry have been consolidated into a one year, one textbook course, as are second year Algebra and Trigonometry. After a topic has been explored in Plane Geometry, the same topic is expanded into the realm of Solid. This procedure is followed with Algebra II and Trigonometry. Math magistrates consider this to be the logical sequence for the study of the two subjects.

Varied uses of Geometry are explained by Tom Hanes and Blinson Wright. Mr. Stone. For example, this picture shows the geometry principles taught in drawing in the quarantine wind tunnel and the lecture

In the ever-changing space age new points of view are being used to cultivate eager inquisitive minds. Basic attitudes are still kept but students have been introduced into the realm of the new frontier. Mathematicians have probed into fundamental math theories and expanded them to meet the modern standards. New rules have been employed by Patrick Henry's math teachers to further students awareness of the benefits of math study. Not only is the natural origin and continual growth of math taught, but the benefits of logical reasoning toward everyday life. Also, the role of math as a major branch of scientific endeavor is emphasized

LEFT Chosen the most valuable student associated with the Science Department, Joanna Cornett has successfully completed all the necessary science credits for graduation. Mayor Murray Stoller presents Joanna the American Legion award for outstanding and unlimited contribution to Patrick Henry

The Science Department is proud to have a large number of students who are interested in the field of science and who are pursuing it as a career.

Patrick Henry's Science Department continued as one of the most modern in the state. This year, a course in nursing chemistry was offered to those who plan to enter the nursing profession. The chemistry, biology, and physics divisions placed special emphasis on preparing students for careers in this age of scientific experiment. Chemistry students were assigned projects on which they spent many long hours combining research and their own experiments pertaining to the theme of their projects.

Hospitals in Roanoke work closely with the Science Department, and again this year a Student-Intern Program was offered to interested science students at Patrick Henry. Allen Hayes was chosen to work in the lab at Jefferson Hospital. This program offers students interested in a medical career the opportunity of actually working in a hospital.

The Science Department initiated a school-wide science fair which was held in March. Although this was not a prerequisite for entering the city science fair, many students did enter and all phases of science were represented.

Languages Bring About An Awareness Of Foreign Cultures

Irene Spangler and Kay Denson converse in Russian as part of their class work

Knowledge of a language helps to prepare a student for the future and to promote a better understanding of peoples of foreign countries. At Patrick Henry the Language Department is continually enlarging its curriculum.

This year was the first time that three years of Russian have been offered. Classes were expanded because of a growing demand for this language.

Team teaching was experienced as part of the curriculum in the Latin Department. Four years of this language are offered. Usually coinciding with the founding of Rome, the culmination of Latin Week, the last week in April, was Floralia, the Festival of Flowers, which Latin students celebrated.

Offering three years of this language, the Spanish department emphasizes pronunciation by using the programmed phonetic course. Integrating the oral, aural and written aspects of the language, the lab impresses on students that "It is not a language unless a person speaks it."

Miss Wood assists one of her Spanish students in the language lab. Students improve pronunciation by listening to tapes recorded in fluent Spanish.

In one of her four Latin classes Mrs. Bowles drills second year students in vocabulary by playing Latin Bingo.

Reporting on a Roman island, Nancy Moss and Claudia and Sue Grammer offer students the favorite food of Sardinia.

In her first year of P.H. Mrs. Roberts, a French Canadian, answers questions asked by third year French student Stuart Singer.

An aim of any foreign language is to provide the student with an understanding and appreciation of that national group and culture, besides encouraging him in the fluent usage of the language. With this two-fold purpose in mind the French department, which next year will add a fifth year to its curriculum, has planned for this summer a six weeks trip to France. Accompanied by Mrs. Spencer, approximately 20 P.H. students will spend two weeks traveling and four weeks attending the University of Reims.

Four Spanish students show off their posters. By working on such projects students learn the geography, mores, and artwork of Spain and Mexico.

Social Studies Spotlight

Patrick Henry's Social Studies Department offers Government, American History, and World History and Geography. Contemporary History, a new course, deals with happenings of the twentieth century. In all classes special emphasis is placed on Latin America, non-western cultures, and Communism.

Did Taft deserve the title of 'trust buster' more than T. Roosevelt? is the subject of this debate in Miss Haley's History class.

In a World Geography class Mr. Nave asks Connie Blake to point out Sarajevo in southern Europe.

Current Events

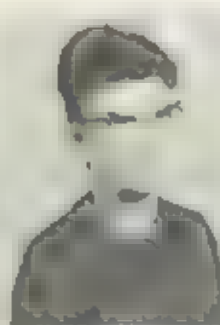

Government classes witnessed government in action on their trip to Richmond to observe the State Legislature. All classes took part in a straw vote for the Presidential Primary and State Legislature.

In honor of our late president, the Social Studies Department established the J.F.K. Memorial Scholarship Fund to aid a representative senior in furthering his education.

Products Of Fine Arts Are Shaped By Hand, Mind And Heart

The creative life of Patrick Henry is centered around the three divisions of the Fine Arts Department. First is the Art Department, which offered basic classes for budding artists and advanced classes for more experienced students. The curriculum included the rudiments of drawing and the use of various media and techniques. Later, students employed their knowledge when working on individual projects. Art history strengthened each student's background and helped him to form his own style and character of work.

Next is the Industrial Arts Department, which emphasized precision rather than artistic ability. Many phases of diagram drawing were taught in mechanical drawing classes. Beginning with the delineation of basic forms, the course gradually built up to the designing of house plans. Neatness and accuracy played a major role in shop as well as mechanical drawing. Sanding, carving, and other essentials of carpentry led to the completion of various projects. Work in ceramics and metals developed craftsmanship.

Yes, girls can be mechanical minded, too. Martha Mcsee demonstrates her abilities in a mechanical drawing class.

In the Fine Arts Department the third and last section is the Music Department, which includes band, choir, orchestra, and music theory classes. The band performed at various school and civic functions, and helped to promote school spirit through its activities. Choir classes were filled with vocalizing and practice for many concerts presented throughout the year. Under the direction of Mr. MacDonald, the orchestra gave programs at school and in conjunction with the Roanoke Youth Symphony. Transposition, modern jazz, classical music, and music history provided students with a sound, yet exciting musical background.

Good music comes from lots of hard work on the part of the director as well as the musicians. Mr. Clyde MacDonald shows his enthusiasm as he motions for the desired effects, and finally grins when they are produced.

Physical Education Presents Activities For Every Interest—From Isometrics To Archery

Along with the fundamental training of the mind, the Patrick Henry Physical Education Department believes that the students should be instructed socially, physically, and emotionally. This department provides opportunities for participation in physical activities, for development of the organic systems so that each may function at its highest level; and for building skills in activities with a favorable attitude toward sportsmanship that will carry over and be useful during leisure time.

By using specially designed equipment, such as contractional bars, boys are able to participate in isometrics; they may also participate in such athletics as volleyball, basketball, track, football, tumbling, ping pong, golf, tennis, and baseball.

Girls may engage in many of the sports and activities just listed. In addition gymnastics, hockey, archery, badminton, and the newly organized bowling program are available.

Gratifying box office receipts from the Phys. Ed. Show will mean the purchase of much new equipment for the Physical Education Department.

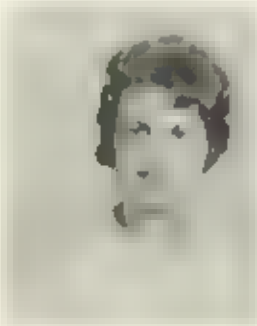

In tumbling, classes learned how to build four tier pyramids as demonstrated by the second period junior gym class.

In General Business, three phases of curriculum are offered: bookkeeping, stenography, and general clerical practice. These courses and activities are designed to meet the common needs of all students and the vocational needs of students who desire to prepare for employment in business. Basic business education provides for the development of knowledge, skills, habits, attitudes, ideals, and appreciations that contribute to a prosperous existence. Capable and interested students are assisted in preparing for further education leading toward management or professional business positions.

As the name implies, the Distributive Education program provides students with the fundamentals in the field of Distribution. Members must work part time in retail, wholesale, and service selling occupations. Each student is required to spend fifteen hours a week on the job training. Classroom education consists of distribution and merchandising as related to store organization.

Homemakers Spice Kitchen With Aroma Of Good Cooking

Included in Patrick Henry's educational system is a practical, interesting subject — Home Economics. Areas covered by this department are many and varied. They include foods and nutrition, child care and development, housing and home management, home care of the sick, care, selection, and construction of clothing and family relationship. All of these are designed to help each individual develop her potential abilities concerning homemaking. Activities are planned to help the student assume responsibilities in situations faced by families today.

Groups of visitors have found the Home Economics department to be a spacious multi-purpose room, divided into a sewing area, living room and dining area, and modern kitchen units, spiced with the aroma of home cooking. These and other aspects have transformed this department into a home-like setting.

Since the home continues to be the foundation of our democratic way of life, home economics will continue to play a vital role in training home makers for tomorrow.

These Staffs Serve Both Students And Faculty

Heading Patrick Henry's fourteen member custodial staff is Mr. Albert Holdren. The beauty and cleanliness of our school depends upon the efficiency of these workers and the co-operation they receive from students and faculty. The maintenance staff, with its numerous problems, works day and night shifts to keep the grounds immaculate. Maintenance equipment of newest design is viewed by many visitors. Other duties are performed by another group of workers in the cafeteria, headed by Mrs. Moses. ATHLETIC LIFE

Summer delivery made it possible for the Patriot to have complete coverage of winter and spring sports. As the season progressed, patriots' pride grew along with enthusiasm for all school teams.

Jumping after 'Victory Yell,' the Varsity Cheerleaders show their enthusiasm before the Jefferson football game. This pep assembly and others were held in the amphitheater between Parsons Hall and the library.

"Everybody Shout It Now—Fight, Patriots, Fight"

Varsity, Junior Varsity and Freshman Cheerleaders led the Patrick Henry student body and faculty in cheering on our football and basketball teams and in boosting school spirit.

In the spring of '63 Varsity Cheerleaders attended a cheerleading clinic at William Fleming High School. During the summer they met each week to practice new cheers that they had learned as well as to work on old ones. Throughout the year cheerleaders kept busy perfecting their cheers, planning pep assemblies and making posters, besides leading the Patriots in cheers at all games. The cheerleaders have also participated in other school activities, such as Freshman Orientation and drama promotion.

Marsha McNeil headed the Varsity Cheerleaders who were Barbara Adams, Ellen Lichtman, Betsy Floeting, Martha Maddox, Ellen Kennedy, Sarah Gibbons, Gloria Rowland, Hallie Colhoun, Pat Rea and Betsy Stevenson.

Junior Varsity Cheerleaders, Kathleen Grady, Martha Epperson, Betsy Edwards, Barbara Bishop, Meredith Pollard, Stephanie Traylor, Valinda Woods, and Carol Grasty, were led by Stephanie Shearer. Mrs. Gravely sponsored the Varsity and Junior Varsity Cheerleaders.

Mrs. Kumm was the sponsor of the Freshman Squad which was made up of Jean Bear, Barbara Yost, Carol Smythe, Carolyn Terry, Kathie Dabney, Shelly Habeck, and Alison Rutherford.

Patriots Really "Ring The Bell" In The BEST Football Season In School History

Football was the big word at P.H. during the fall. School spirit seemed to emerge from Patriot rooters. A major reason for this sudden outburst was the elevation of Howard Light to head coach and the fine 6-1-3 season that his first team enjoyed. Other contributing factors were the sharp wit of our new tobacco chewing line coach, Ray Lucas, and the defensive tactics employed by Coach McClearn.

A spectacular win over Andrew Lewis opened the Patrick Henry schedule. Ironically, the next three games ended in ties. These caused Mr. Light to dream his team finished with a 1-0-9 record.

The following week, a crushing victory over Cave Spring erased

Mr. Light's dream. Next came wins over Richlands and Danville and it seemed the "Patriots" were ready to roll. E.C. Glass stood between Patrick Henry and a Western District Championship. Glass won.

After the first and only loss, two games remained. Both resulted in Patriot victories. Northside fell by a 20-7 score and Tazewell was defeated, thanks to an amazing come-from-behind touchdown in the closing seconds.

This final victory gave the 1963-64 team a 6-1-3 slate (best ever) and the distinction of being the highest scoring and the least scored upon team in Patrick Henry's 3 year history of football.

Could it be that an ambitious referee is stepping off a 15-yard penalty before the opening kickoff? Coaches McClearn, Lucas, Light, and Johnson seem to think so.

Giving proof of the outstanding football season were several honors received by the 1963-64 Patriots. Patrick Henry tied for the City-County football championship with William Fleming and was presented the Roanoke Civitan Club sportsmanship trophy, awarded annually to one of thirty-some teams in Southwest Virginia.

Tonto Coleman, assistant athletic director at Georgia Tech, was guest speaker at the football banquet. Several players were recognized for their contributions to the success of the then recently completed season: Gary Klemas was named the team's outstanding player; Steve Shaver received the sportsmanship trophy; Vin Edwards and John Byrd were designated as outstanding back and lineman respectively.

victory over Halifax (66-46) enabled the team to compete in the Western-Southwest District tournament. P H. slipped by Graham (52-50) in the opening round, but was crushed by William Fleming (83-43) in the second

This team had several distinctions over previous years. These included scoring the most points scored in a game (79), participating in the District tournament, and having a player, Mac McClung, to make the Western District first team

The future looks bright for Mr. Mosser's young squad. Only two seniors were on the squad and the host of returning lettermen will be strengthened by the upcoming J.V. team

Most students remember Varsity players, but few remember boys who participate on lower levels. Patrick Henry fields separate Junior Varsity and Freshman teams in football and basketball. The Freshman football team, coached by Mr. Masser and Mr. Fracker, experienced a 4-1-1 season. Coaches Briggs and Johnson saw their J. V. footballers struggle to a 3-3-1 record; however, many players gained experience.

Mr. Fracker and Mr. Johnson doubled as Freshman and J. V. basketball coaches respectively. The Freshman team won only three games; but the final victory was over previously undefeated Monroe Junior High and made the season a success. Likewise, the JV's had a good season, boasting the best record (13-5) ever for a P. H. Junior varsity basketball team.

Experience was the path that led to Patrick Henry's first winning wrestling season. Coach Briggs's grapplers posted an 8-5 record. More victories increased interest in the sport and brought larger crowds to the matches.

The most exciting contest of the season was a close victory (25-22) over Dublin which stood 22-5 in their favor at one time. A win over a strong William Byrd team avenged an earlier loss and highlighted the year.

Juniors Mike Blaisole and Jim Bishop led the team with identical 11-1 regular season records. Mike finished an impressive sixth in the heavyweight division at the state meet and was named the team's outstanding wrestler.

With all except one wrestler returning from the strong 1963-64 team, Patrick Henry should shortly become a City-County mat power.

Wrestlers Buddy Adams and Mike Long share Coach Briggs' interest in a struggle on the home mat.

Patriot Sluggers Are Among Leaders In City-County Batting

A midseason spurt of three victories highlighted the baseball season. Unfortunately, seven straight losses followed, lowering the record to 4-12.

A lack of players with varsity experience resulted in the use of many new boys. Not the least of these was freshman catcher Bob Bushkar who paced City-County hitters with a .400 average and was named the team's most valuable player. Other top batsmen were senior Phil Reed, junior Tim Smith and sophomore Eddie Compton, whose eleven runs batted in led the team. The mound chores were rotated among seniors Fred Umberger and Richard Nichols and lower classmen Bob Slaughter and David Reid. Umberger had the second lowest earned run average in the City-County.

Coach McClearn slanted his first year toward building. Only five seniors will depart. Most of the top hitters will be back to return Patrick Henry to its former position of diamond supremacy.

Patriot Cindermen Set New Records

Although eleven members of last year's track team returned, the 1964 track season was definitely pointed toward making Patrick Henry a future track power. Mr. Lucas assumed the head coaching position with Mr. Light remaining as an assistant.

The season began with close losses to Jefferson and Cave Spring. The lone victory came over Danville. District champion Andrew Lewis overpowered the Patriot trackmen in the final dual meet. A fourth place in the Western District meet closed the season for most team members, but Bert Hodges, Wesley Owens, George Turner and George Hawkins went to the state meet.

Two boys set new school records during the season. Bert Hodges ran the low hurdles in 21 seconds and Carr Stogner lowered the high hurdle time to 15.2 seconds. Wesley Owens's pole vault of 12' 6" and George Turner's high jump of 5' 10" were new records in the Western District meet and the Buena Vista relays, respectively.

With only five senior lettermen on the team, Coach Lucas should have enough good boys returning to reestablish Patrick Henry as a leader in District track.

Jackie Burrows played number one, but lost twice to Bobby Heald of E. C. Glass. Leading the team with undefeated records were Doug Haynie, David Turner and Horace Thomas. Haynie, the team's only senior, and Turner were 8-0 for the season. Thomas finished 6-0.

Linksmen Tops In City-County

Heading the list of spring athletics at Patrick Henry was the golf team's 9-1 record. Although it lost to Danville, the 1964 team had probably better over-all balance than its predecessors. This point was clearly illustrated in the victory over E. C. Glass, all P. H. golfers shot in the 70's.

The City-County tournament followed the regular season. The Patriots finished thirty-five ahead of William Fleming, the closest competitor. Next came the state tournament. There Patrick Henry's "tenth" placed higher than Danville and thus avenged the regular season loss.

Girls Physical Education Offers Sports Unlimited

From the opening of Patrick Henry, the gym teachers have done much to promote physical education for all of the students. With the dawn of each new school year come more sports equipment. The annual Physical Education shows are presented not only so the parents, teachers and friends can see what is taught in the gym classes but also to raise money so the gymnastic facilities can be enlarged. Much equipment has been obtained making the sports opportunities unlimited. Archery, table tennis, badminton, volleyball, basketball, field hockey and softball are only some of the sports offered.

In collaboration with the Viking Lanes Bowling Alleys, Inc., Mrs. Betty Jo Patsel, junior girls teacher, arranged to have students take bowling lessons and advance their bowling skills. At the Athletic Honors Assembly in May, trophies were presented to girls who had the highest continuous scores, highest single scores and the most advanced progress.

Student Government Membership Totals 1264 Each Student Has A Part

Every student at Patrick Henry is a member of the Student Government Association. The Executive Council and the House of Burgesses, composed of home room presidents, form the two governing bodies.

1963-1964 opened for the S.G.A. with a Faculty Tea and Orientation Day for Freshman. Quentin Bondurant, President, with cheerleaders, planned all pep assemblies, and helped lead student cheering. The Homecoming Assembly, Parade and Dance were organized by student government. Before the holidays, S.G.A. sponsored the Christmas Dance and in the spring held a Carnival and Dance.

Coordinating student life and activities, S.G.A. displayed the Student Activities Calendar each month. All year bookcovers, pennants, decals and saving stamps were sold. Publication of the Student Directory was another important project. During exams student government provided the faculty with coffee and doughnuts. A Hospitality Committee was organized and served as guides for Back-to-School Night. All elections were conducted by S.G.A.

Sponsoring Brotherhood Week the S.G.A. recognized its President, Quentin Bondurant, with the Brotherhood Award. Also, the student government organized an Honor Assembly and later divided the entire student family into thirty-five discussion groups to strengthen the atmosphere of honor at P.H.

F.T.A. Members Try On Profession Of Teaching

Interesting students in the teaching profession was the main wish of the Patrick Henry F.T.A. This was effectively accomplished by holding discussions with student teachers on college planning, selecting the right courses, and college life. While at the State Convention, members gained an insight into the preparation for their careers as educators. On April 17th, Career Day, F.T.A. members visited elementary schools. Culminating the year's activities was the Annual F.T.A. Banquet at which pins were awarded.

Members were A. Bennett, M. Board, E. Cayton, N. Dickerson, S. Driscoll, P. Groff, E. Hale, H. Hardin, L. Holdren, C. Huddleston, B. Munsey, B. Norris, and A. Peterson.

Services To School And Community Are Objectives Of Patrick Henry Hi-Y And Y-Teens

Through many activities the Patrick Henry Hi-Y served its school and community well. School services included ushering for assemblies, raising and lowering the American flag on school days, parking cars at football games, contributing money to the P. H. Field House Fund, and organizing the Easter Assembly

The Hi-Y served the community by collecting and delivering Christmas baskets, helping the American Association of University Women with its book sale, storing food in public buildings and shelters for Civil Defense, and delivering posters for the Cancer Society

Following an induction of new members, regular meetings were usually held every other Thursday night. Programs varied from swimming at the YMCA to talks by Mr. Knight on car racing and gliding. At the end of the year the annual picnic was held at Fishburn Park with money earned in a rummage sale and a car wash. New officers were installed and Mr. Johnson was presented a gift

Topics Are Unlimited In Liberal Arts Club

The Liberal Arts Club meets twice a month to discuss the matters of society, theology and psychology. Its members invite outside speakers who lecture on communism and religion. The purpose of this group is to stimulate thought and learning and to hear the views of others of the same age.

Members are: J. Cornett, K. Cunningham, J. Ebbett, K. Gussow, I. Gussow, L. Leavitt, E. Lowenstein, M. Nininger, A. Socks, A. Trolsen and C. Weckstein. Mr. Porterfield is the sponsor.

With the new name, The Players, Patrick Henry's drama club has seemed to become a more nearly professional group. Under the guidance of Mr. James Ayers the Patrick Henry Players have produced five plays during their 1964-65 season.

Activities have not been limited to acting, but included building sets, producing and directing.

In the spring The Players won a superior rating in the district and state forensic competition with their production of a cutting from The Faithful Lightning by Kermit Hunter.

Hooray! The Players

Through The Players, students are able to be inducted into the National Thespian Society. For membership they must have 15 points, the equivalent of 150 hours of work with The Players. Twelve "players" had enough points in the Spring to earn Membership. Officers of The Players must be Thespians. Rawley Turner was chosen as Best Thespian for 1964-65.

Patrick Henry's Players had five plays on their agenda during the 1963-64 season. Blithe Spirit was presented in November, A Young Lady of Property and Sand Box in February, The Faithful Lightning in March and A Midsummer Night's Dream in May.

Work on plays included building sets, getting props and costumes, making-up the actors, and obtaining proper lighting affects. On the basis of their technical performance, Laura Pharis and Mary Anne Moorman were presented master technician awards.

For Blithe Spirit the cast included Sally Doud, Cindy Leeds, Rawley Turner, Mark Johnston, Alden Willis, Marty Corstaphney, and Dianne Race. Jane Mastin, Rusty Potter, Dee Chapman, Nancy Moss, John Byrd, Sherry Gullede, Liv Erikrem, Russ Gustafson and Dianne Race were the actors in A Young Lady of Property. In Sand Box the stars were Bob Dillard, Cindy Leeds, Hunter Roberts and Marty Corstaphney.

The Faithful Lightning, which was presented for the district and state forensic meets had Marty Corstaphney, Ann Townsend, Mary Anne Mullins, Sharon Kerfoot, Cindy Leeds, Mark Johnston, Hunter Roberts, Rawley Turner and Bob Dillard as its performers.

A Midsummer Night's Dream was a combination of students from all areas of the Fine Arts Department. It boasted a large and talented cast — John Byrd, Charles Winters, Bob Dillard, Rusty Potter, David McCall, Mike Bond, Mark Johnston, Billy Kinzie, Russ Gustafson, Hunter Roberts, Robert Manetta, Sally Doud, Dianne Race, Mary Anne Moorman, Rawley Turner, Cindy Leeds, Bill Waldrop, Shelly Habeck, Becky Norris, Ann Janney, Kevin Cunningham and Nancy Moss.

At the Players' banquet acting awards were presented to Marty Corstaphney for Sandbox and Bill Waldrop and Hunter Roberts for A Midsummer Night's Dream. Special recommendation for progress went to Bobby Dillard and Mary Anne Moorman for A Midsummer Night's Dream.

QUILL, Sue Hawkins, reads one of the "finished products" to the Creative Writing Class. This class provides the material for the magazine.

At the top of the quilt is the design for the Spring issue.

Design for the Spring issue is kept in the quilt design.

Quill Inspires Originality In Writing And Drawing

This year the QUILL staff set to work, eager to top last year's sweeping success at SIPA and Columbia where the magazine received the Trophy and Medalist ratings. Determined to continue their high standards, staff members immediately began to examine, criticize and tear apart the work submitted by students and finally to select QUILL material.

Under the direction of Mrs. Young the art department and art staff worked with the staff choosing and planning the make-up of the magazine. Illustrations often are inspired by stories; at other times drawings inspire verbal interpretations.

Without pausing to rest after completing a quality fall magazine, Mrs. Sadler's writing class plunged once again into creative efforts, producing sonnets, cinquains, short stories and articles, again the staff had its hands full editing and choosing from the wealth of material for the spring edition.

Highlights of this busy year for the staff were an extensive campaign to secure patrons for the QUILL and various other money-making activities, and a complimentary letter from a fan in London, England.

Delivering one thousand papers to eager readers is the bi-monthly task of the Statesman staff. The six-page paper is distributed to the 850 student subscribers, school faculty and administrative staff, and the city school board. Also, issues of the paper are exchanged with other schools in the valley.

Preparation of one edition of the paper includes designing page lay-out, soliciting ads, writing and typing up copy and having pictures taken. One week before the paper is to be issued several staff members attend the final proof-reading at the printer's office.

Statesman was awarded a first place at Southern Interscholastic Press Association in 1963 and 1964 and a second place at Columbia Press Association. Also, an award was received for outstanding observance of National Newspaper Week.

1964 Patriot Yearbook Features Students

Late last summer the 1963 PATRIOT was issued. Naturally students grumbled because they had not had the Yearbook for summer perusal even though they later enjoyed full year coverage.

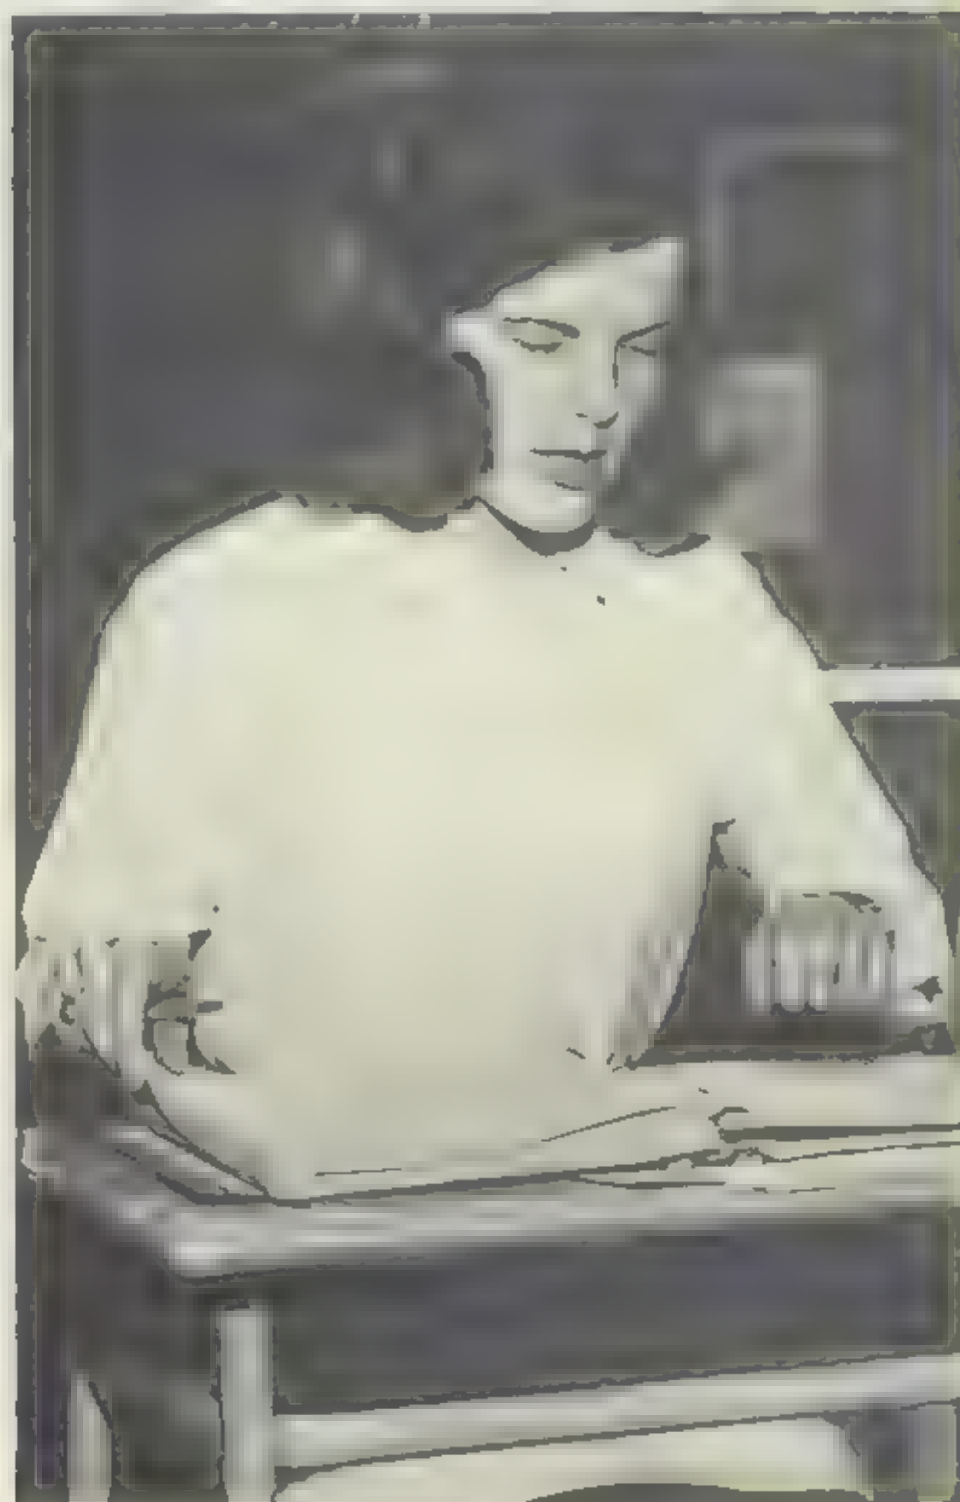

These facts, that students were finally pleased with the 1963 PATRIOT, that it won critical approval, Medalist at Columbia University Press Association and a 972 high First Place at Southern Scholastic Press Association seem to indicate that Summer delivery has its merits.

On the basis of a school wide vote taken in the Fall a second late delivery was planned. With the guidance of Art Adviser Mrs. Young and Art Editor Lennora Carey, the Art Staff designed the cover and the complete book layout. Pushed by Literary Editor Elaine Borker and by Mrs. Drewry, faculty adviser, the Literary Staff turned themselves into Liaison officers, writers of sprightly copy captions and headlines.

Addition of a school darkroom enabled Head Photographer Chip Deverle and Ben Shank to work on pictures during the sixth period.

Jim Steve Warner and Bob Pedgley assisted all year with picture assignments. In fact 197 photographs of the 1964 PATRIOT were student taken, developed and printed.

The first PATRIOT spotlighted the School, the second Curriculum. This third year Students are featured—1264 artists on the new Patrick Henry stage.

"Magnificent!" best described the quality of work put forth by both the French and Latin newspaper staffs of Patrick Henry. The high degree of excellence exhibited by both was shown clearly in their Columbia Press Association ratings. LA LIBERTE, a strictly French paper, achieved an award of Superior, while ORATOR, a Latin-English paper, received a First Place Award. Both papers are concerned with their language news, current events, editorials and jokes.

Spanish League

Explores Culture And Language Of Modern Spain

Spanish spirit is radiated by eighty-six members of the Spanish League. Open to all Spanish students, it is led by capable third and fourth year pupils. At monthly meetings, members have the opportunity to explore Spanish customs and make further use of their knowledge of the language.

Most of the year was spent in writing a new constitution for the League. At Christmas the group sponsored its annual "fiesta." Finishing out the year was the Senior Day program and picnic. Sponsors were Miss Wolfenden and Miss Wood.

Hard Practice And Progress Fill The Choir's Year

Mr. Ferguson extracts liltng melodies from his otherwise boistrous Choir members

Under the direction of Mr. Gene Ferguson, the Patrick Henry Choir sang its way through an exciting and eventful year. Hours of practice helped to build a varied repertoire, which was put to use during four television appearances and performances before several civic clubs. Christmas activities were extensive. The holiday spirit echoed over the campus as the carolling Choir wound its way about the halls. Crossroads Mall became the scene of a similar concert. The Choir combined with other local groups and individual artists to present Handel's Messiah in the gym, December eighth. After Yuletide festivities, ten representatives were sent to the All State Chorus held in Danville, Virginia. Students at Woodrow Wilson enjoyed a March recital by the Choir. An exchange of concerts was arranged with Addison High at Easter. The weekend of April 26th found the Choir en route to Williamsburg for its three day spring tour. On May 15th, songs were presented at the Spring Serata, an annual production of the Fine Arts Department. A busy year's most exciting moments came when the Choir provided music for Baccalaureate services and Commencement.

The authority and responsibility of President, they bestowed upon Dee Copenhaver. John Eure was elected Vice-President. Kathie Dabney, Secretary; Benson Wire, Treasurer; and Mary Glenn Sims, Executive Council Representative.

Each freshman homeroom selected a representative to serve on the Steering Committee. Mike Custer, Beverly Hobbie, Debbie Myers, Judy Weaver, Dianne Davis, Sara Hatcher, Jan Dyerle, Bonnie Hollingsworth, Cathy O'Donnell, and Ann Simmons were members of the Freshman Steering Committee and helped to organize all class projects.

Freshmen gallantly took charge of the coat room for both the Christmas

Dance and the Prom. On May 1, freshmen began selling themselves to the upperclassmen, seniors first, for fifty cents for one day's service. Liberty-loving class members could buy back their freedom for a dollar. May 8 was the big day, and at 3 o'clock many weary freshmen walked home, glad that Freshman Slave Day would come for them no more.

As the end of school neared, freshmen, assured of themselves now, prepared an Orientation Program for next year's freshman class. Members of the class of '67 explained student life, student government and extracurricular activities of P. H. to eighth graders at Woodrow Wilson.

With the last day of final exams the freshmen, with pride and joy, became sophomores, ready for a second and more responsible year in high school.

On Freshman Serve Day proud upperclassman Phil Rogers, Farm Lane and Moron Via to tote his heavy books.

Deciding the program for the Organization Assembly at Woodrow Wilson members of the Freshman Steering Committee are Ann Simmons, Beverly Hobbs, Debbie Myers, Mark Custer, Jan Dyere, Sara Hatcher, Dee Copenhaver, Judy Weaver, Dianne Davis and Mrs. Myru Kyther, principal.

Sophs Lead P.H. Girls In Leap Year Man Hunt

With the new-found prestige of no longer being the lowest class, sophomores of 1964 began to feel a larger force in the school. Promotion from freshmen to sophs brought about a decided change.

They became more reliable, responsible and original and produced good ideas as a result of their growth in stature. This growth made them more active in school projects as was evident by 100% payment of class dues.

During the campaign for an honor system at P.H., the sophs have really tried to increase student support. They, also, helped to raise money for the JFK Scholarship Fund.

After passing the traditional freshman slave day to the frosh, sophs planned their class project.

Since it was leap year, the perfect activity was a Sadie Hawkins Dance. It was held April 4 with the cafeteria decorated by barnyard murals. The band, Ricky and the Romans, made it a great success.

Not only did the sophs plan for 1964, but for their junior and senior years. They discussed ideas for the Junior-Senior Prom of '65 and a useful gift for their senior project.

In all projects and campaigns, sophs were led by their class officers, class adviser — Mrs. Stone and the sophomore steering committee. On the steering committee were S. Dern, S. Shearer, M. Mundy, G. Douglas, T. Walden, W. Fleshmen, S. McHan, L. Bailey, B. Slaughter, C. Grasty, J. Butler and P. Lucado.

Juniors' Vigorous Regime Strengthens Patrick Henry

Continuous success of the class of 1965 is a reflection of the diligent work performed by its members. Led by class officers John Light, president, Rowell Sargeant, vice-president, Bobby Jean Mitchell, secretary, Linda Perdue, treasurer, and Susan Grammer, executive council representative, the class has initiated many projects which will remain outstanding in future years at Patrick Henry. In 1962, as freshmen, the class introduced Slave Day, which has become the annual freshman project. The Boys' Beauty Pageant became a yearly affair after a most successful premiere in the spring of 1963. The junior year brought forth the second Boys' Beauty Pageant.

To wish the seniors happy graduation and a successful future, the juniors, on May 23, 1964, presented the annual Junior-Senior Prom, theming it "Sayonara." Honor was paid to each senior with the striking of an oriental gong upon his entrance. The floor show, written and directed by Jo Sydenstricker, was a brief review of the highlights in the seniors' last year of high school.

With the influential guidance of Mrs. Florence Stump, Class sponsor, the Juniors have again experienced a most eventful year.

World And School Happenings Add To Seniors' Maturity

Actors on a new stage have continued the play which was begun three short years ago. As Act I began, the class of 1964 was in its Sophomore year, never having had to experience the chagrin of being "lowly freshmen".

Under the guidance of the Steering Committee and Mrs. Evelyn Giles, the Senior class flourished. A carefully planned Hootenanny of folk singing groups raised the balance of an already large treasury. On Heronimus Day Patrick Henry seniors earned enough points to obtain the $100 first-place award.

Traditions have been well established in three seasons: Senior exams were taken early, "Seniors first" lunch line privilege was fully initiated, and traditional respect was paid seniors by giving them the prime seats in assemblies.

Much group effort was put into the selection of a suitable class gift. From the many suggestions offered, all-purpose spotlights and a large brick sign to identify the school were chosen. All extra funds were donated to the JFK Scholarship Fund.

Graduation was a moment of high exultation in the lives of 252 seniors. Sixty-one honor graduates were within the ranks of the Senior class. Two girls combined diligence with hard work to complete the entire high school curriculum in three years. The period which "was not a goal in itself, but a time for preparation" was finally realized.

Municipal Day heightens interest in the various branches of city government—the police department, city manager's office, the courts, offices of the city treasurer, and the planning commission. Here one squad of students is driving at the Municipal Building.

Senior Days Offer A Glimpse Of Adult Leadership

During the year the Senior Class was given many opportunities to display its leadership abilities. On April 22, Patrick Henry Seniors, with those from four area high schools, participated in Heironimus Day. Continuing the precedent set by last year's Senior Class, the Class of '64 again won first place in the competition which was judged on poise, salesmanship, attire, and personality.

On April 17, members of the Senior Class were able to try their hand at teaching. At this time the regular members of the faculty were honored with corsages and boutonnieres and had the fun of stepping aside while able seniors taught their classes. Quentin Bondurant substituted for Mr. Secord, while Charlie Fidler, John Feldmann, and Gary Sullivan ran their respective halls.

Senior Bert Hodges thoughtfully listens to a student's question as he lectures a Junior history class during Senior Leadership Day.

Senior Day Is Highlighted With Fun

May 29th found gay patriot seniors at school for a day of "fun and frolic." Senior Day began as the Class of 1964 gathered in the gym for a hootenanny and sport activity. Picnic lunches were supplied for the bermuda-clad seniors on the green expanse of lawn. At one-fifteen the seniors entertained the underclassmen with their final assembly. Their whole high school career was highlighted, superlatives recognized and prophecy read.

Martha Lee and Sally Hollyfield picnic on the Patrick Henry campus as seniors take a break before their last assembly.

The Begheer are they. Don Forbes, Billy Reed, and John Feltman, gayfully impersonate their favorite singers.

Awaiting the blessing, the Class of 1964 gathers for the annual Senior Breakfast.

Tears And Laughter Mark The End And The Beginning

The big night was Thursday, June 4, 1964. At 7 p.m. all were on the lawn. The challenge of history, suggested by a quote of John F. Kennedy, was illustrated by the five top graduating seniors in their commencement addresses. Weather was marvelous so were speeches, recognitions by Dr. E. W. Rushton—superintendent of schools and the Patrick Henry administrative staff, scholarships, and especially the magic line of seniors moving to the balcony to receive those lovely diplomas.

Nothing is more stirring than the recognition of great public purpose. Every great age is marked by innovation and daring—by the ability to meet unprecedented problems with intelligent solutions. In a time of turbulence and change, it is more true than ever that knowledge is power, for only by true understanding and steadfast judgement are we able to master the challenge of history."

—John Fitzgerald Kennedy

The Sun Sets—

A New Day Dawns

Graduation 1964—As the sun goes down students reflect on the past years. They have been busy with study, work and extra curricular activities. Many memories come to mind as the Seniors file through the line to receive their diplomas. The thoughts of long hours of homework, themes and projects become dim, mixed with the fond memories of dances, the Prom, the Serata and the many activities of the year.

Tomorrow will be a new day, filled with new hopes, ambitions and dreams. For the underclassmen new goals for high school come first. College, work, service or marriage fills the mind of each graduate.

Dr. Reardon, the speaker for Baccalaureate, gave us a charge. "Dare to be a person . . . Get off the track and stay off." Each student should accept this challenge for tomorrow.

BY JOHNNY HART

It's different... I like it!

Seems like everyone's drinking Dr Pepper these days. And no wonder. It's completely different — not a cola, not a root beer, but a happy blend of many fruit flavors. That's why so many people say, "It's different — I like it!" Try it soon!
